

Major repairs to Portsea beach seawall

Project Update, 16 December 2019

To minimise any inconvenience during the peak Christmas and January periods, repair works to the Portsea sandbag seawall have stopped and will resume in early February 2020.

The site is currently fenced off, with warning and information signs.

A rock wall is in place and is a temporary structure to protect workers whilst they carry out the repairs. It will be removed at the end of the project.

Pedestrian access to the pier is being maintained during the works and shutdown.

The beach remains accessible via the scaffold stairs until February, or if safety becomes compromised.
