EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Mornington Peninsula Heritage Review Area 3, builds on assessment work in previous heritage studies undertaken in 1992 and 1994. It also reviews the work undertaken by Graeme Butler & Associates in 2012, which recommended survey and assessment of the whole Shire. In order to achieve such a huge task, the Shire was divided into four geographic areas and these stages or Areas have been progressively implemented since 2012. Areas 1 and 2 have been completed by Context Pty Ltd. This study, Area 3 comprises the towns of Blairgowrie, Sorrento and Portsea and was commissioned in June 2017. The future Area 4, is a very large area comprising the remaining parts of the Shire around Hastings and Flinders.

The consultants and Council staff have surveyed every street in Area 3, re-examined properties already included on the Heritage Overlay, checked all places on Council's GIS watch list and acted on community recommendations for assessment. Many places were identified as having potential cultural heritage values and were then assessed and either included in a list or rejected. A final list of places recommended for heritage protection was assessed and a citation written, which forms Volume 2 of this study.

Key Findings

The key findings of the heritage review, Area 3 are:

- There are no new places of State significance.
- There are 66 new individual places assessed as having local significance and recommended for inclusion on the Heritage Overlay schedule.
- There are two new precincts assessed to be of local significance and recommended for inclusion on the Heritage Overlay schedule.
- HO1 is proposed to be split into four separate precincts, with individual statements of significance and with amended mapping.
- There is one place, HO43, which requires amendment of the mapping and the schedule.
- There is one place, HO203, which requires amendment of the schedule only
- There is one place, HO47, which has a new statement of significance which will require amendment of the HO schedule.

Summary of Recommendations

It is recommended that the Mornington Peninsula Council:

- Adopt the Mornington Peninsula Heritage Review, Area 3 (2019) and include it as a Background Document in the Planning Scheme:
 - Volume 1 - Key Findings and Recommendations (This report)
 - Volume 2 - Citations
- Implement the Mornington Peninsula Shire Heritage Review, Area 3 (2019) by:
 - Adding the places from Appendix A Places Recommended for Heritage Protection, (List C) in the Heritage Overlay Schedule of the Mornington Peninsula Planning Scheme.
 - Introduce 6 precincts listed in Appendix A, to the Heritage Overlay Schedule of the Mornington Peninsula Planning Scheme.
 - Amend mapping of HO43 on Heritage Overlay Schedule of the Mornington Peninsula Planning Scheme.
 - Amend Heritage Overlay Schedule of HO203
 - Introduce a new Statement of Significance to HO47 on Heritage Overlay Schedule of the Mornington Peninsula Planning Scheme.
 - Amend HO schedule HO255(VHR H1050) to include a new HO within the existing VHR extent, at 3098 Point Nepean Road.
- Undertake a regular review of places on List A, (Appendix B) which should replace Council's GIS Watchlist.

- Undertake further research into the limestone buildings on the Nepean Peninsula, see Appendix F.
- Undertake a future review of places listed on the Heritage Overlay Schedule that have citations non-compliant with DELWP PPN1.

Area 3, comprising the suburbs of Blairgowrie, Sorrento and Portsea.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

1.1 Background

The Mornington Peninsula Shire was formed in 1994 from the amalgamation of the former Flinders, Mornington and Hastings Shires, and a southern section of the former City of Frankston.

The following heritage studies were carried out before 2017:

- Shire of Flinders Heritage Study, 1992 and updated 1997
- Shire of Mornington Heritage Study, 1994
- City of Frankston Heritage Study, 1995
- Hastings District Heritage Study, 2001
- Area 1, Heritage Study Review, 2012
- Area 2, Heritage Study Review, 2017

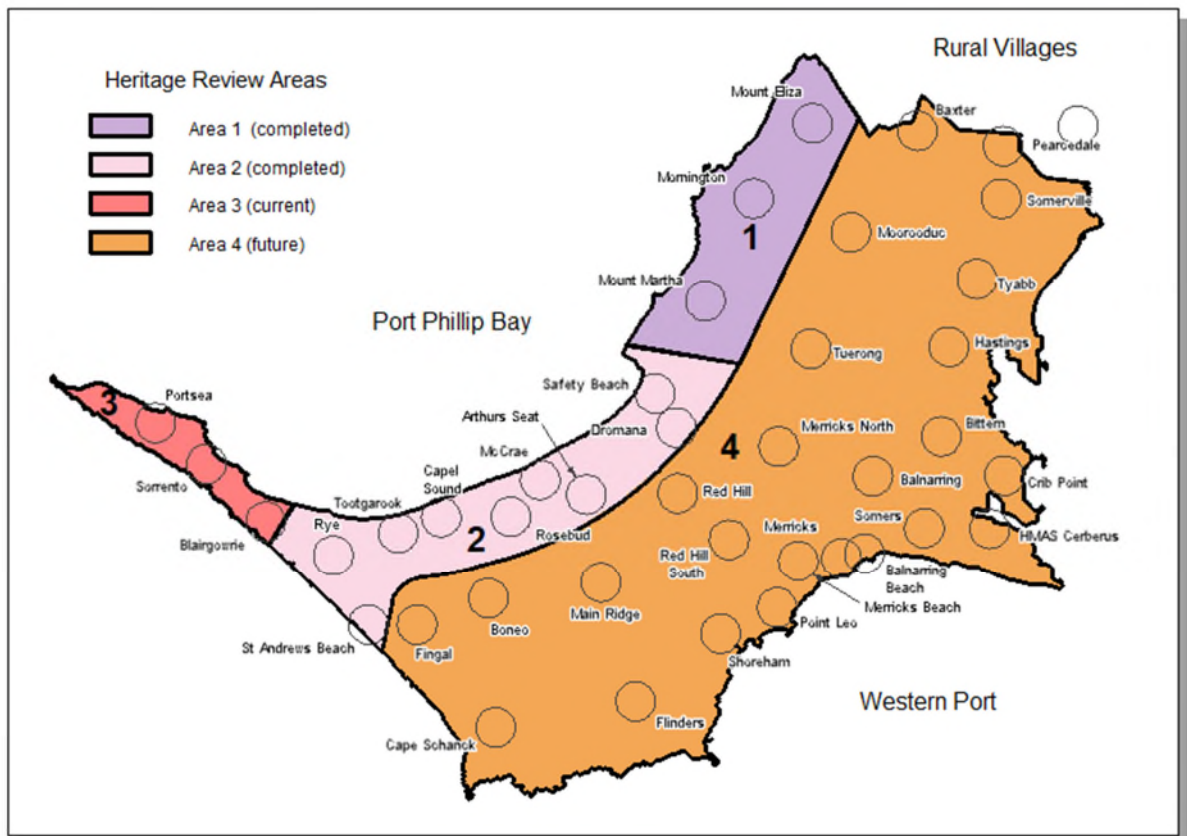

Figure 1 Location plan of Heritage Review Areas 1, 2, 3 and 4 (Source: Mornington Peninsula Shire Council)

In 2006 Graeme Butler and Associates undertook a desk-top review of the Shire's heritage management, which recommended a Thematic History be undertaken and each study to be made compliant with DELWP Planning Practice Note 1. The review also recommended that a progressive program of checking, surveying and assessing the whole of the Shire to identify previously unidentified places and review those on the Heritage Overlay.

In order to keep an eye on places of potential significance, Council created a GIS watchlist and agreed to break the Shire into four areas or stages for future heritage reviews.

The study area for this current review is defined by the Council brief as Area 3, Sorrento, Portsea and Blairgowrie. Areas 1 and 2 have been the subject of previous Heritage Studies undertaken by Context Pty Ltd. Area 4 is the large area inland and west of Western Port Bay and it will be the subject of a future heritage review.

Area 3 includes the suburbs of Portsea, Sorrento and Blairgowrie. Sites inside the Point Nepean National Park and at Police Point, Portsea, were not included in this review as they are listed on the Victorian Heritage Register (VHR). Other sites listed on the VHR were also excluded from the review, such as The Continental Hotel, Delgany, The Athenaeum, Ilyuka Limekiln, The Anchorage and the Collins Settlement Site.

1.2 Brief

The brief for the project formed part of Council quotation CN2215: Heritage Study Review - Stage 3.

The project aims for the brief were:

- To identify, research, assess and document all heritage places in the study area in accordance with current best practice, and to at least the standard, format, typical volume and content (as appropriate) of Heritage Review, Area 2.
- To ensure that appropriate examples of places adequately representing the Shire's historic themes, contained in the Thematic History, are recommended for heritage overlay status.
- To ensure that key places representing the history of recognised localities in the study area are assessed and possibly recommended for heritage overlay protection.
- To provide a level of confidence to the Shire and the community that all reasonable steps have been taken to identify, research and assess every heritage place within the study area which should be protected for their local and/or Shire-wide significance, including for total coverage, progressively surveying, recording and mapping all streets, roads and areas in the study area consistent with this brief.
- To provide, within each citation, brief guidance about the extent, location and general nature of modifications that may be considered, and the design principles that should be applied in designing works and determining planning applications.

Council provided the consultants with lists of places to be assessed. These included 222 places on a Council GIS watchlist, 69 existing HOs and approximately 117 places within HO1, in addition to any places identified during fieldwork.

The project was broken into stages based on the submission of three consecutive lists, being; Schedule A, Schedule B and Schedule C. (Also called List A, List B and List C)

A consultant team was formed from staff of Built Heritage Pty Ltd and heritage ALLIANCE, and were contracted to undertake the review in June 2017.

1.3 Limitations

The primary limitation of the study was the extensive fieldwork required to inspect and assess properties. The study area was broken into three parts; Area 3A and 3B and the remaining areas. Areas 3A and 3B were thoroughly surveyed by the consultants, street by street to determine places of potential heritage significance. The remaining areas were surveyed by Council's heritage officer and a table of potential places was given to the consultants to investigate further.

The consultants cross checked the GIS watch list with the Heritage Overlay schedule and the list provided by Council's heritage officer. Every site was then mapped on a planning scheme map and checked off as they were inspected during field work. The number of places to be reinspected (approx. 186) and the number of potential places identified by the Council (approx. 222) plus places identified in fieldwork (approx. 70), created a much longer Schedule A, than Council had expected.

During the refinement of Schedule A to Schedule B, the number of places to be assessed was reduced to 227 places of which 38 places were included in two precincts and 46 identified as contributory to HO1.

Schedule C was the list of places recommended for inclusion on the Heritage Overlay. This was further reduced after prioritising and application of local thresholds, to 66 individual HOs and 38 places in two precincts. Sorrento Historic Precinct HO1, was reviewed separately and four precinct overlays were recommended.

Places were only inspected externally unless for some institutional or community buildings we were invited inside. External investigation was rendered very difficult for large numbers of cliff top properties in Sorrento and Portsea with limited access, and in the residential areas with deep house blocks and dense vegetation.

Community members of the reference group were keen to have the consultants review citations for a number of places listed on the Victorian Heritage Register, such as the Collins Settlement Site. Council agreed with the consultants that these were not a priority of the review, given the ample documentation that exists for those places and the sufficient protection they have under the Heritage Act 2017.

1.7 Definitions

- Place means site, area, landscape, garden, building or other work, group of buildings or other works together with associated contents and surrounds.
- Cultural significance means aesthetic, historic, scientific or social value for past, present or future generations.
- Social value embraces the qualities for which a place has become a focus of spiritual, political, national or other cultural sentiment to a majority or minority group.
- Fabric means all the physical material of the place.

- Conservation means all the processes of looking after a place so as to retain its cultural significance. It includes maintenance and may according to circumstance include preservation, restoration, reconstruction and adaptation and will be commonly a combination of more than one of these.

2.0 APPROACH AND METHODOLOGY

2.1 Methodology

The current heritage review was prepared in accordance with the Burra Charter: The Australia ICOMOS Charter for Places of Cultural Heritage Significance and the revised Victorian Planning Provisions Practice Note No.1 "Applying the Heritage Overlay", August 2018 (PPN1).

PPN1 specifies the assessment criteria, how to write a Statement of Significance and guidelines for the new requirement to have Statements of Significance incorporated in the planning scheme for each heritage place included in the schedule to the heritage overlay after 31 July 2018.

Although not specified in the brief, the consultants were aware that the study area contained a large number of significant Post World War 2 houses, designed by eminent Australian modernist architects. The assessment and research tasks of the review were divided by the consultants into Pre and Post-WW2, to reflect the expertise required. Sera-Jane Peters of heritage ALLIANCE surveyed and assessed the Late Victorian, Federation and Inter War places and Simon Reeves of Built Heritage Pty Ltd surveyed and assessed the Post-war places.

The Stage 3 review was carried out generally in accordance with the Brief, however changes in council staffing saw a number of changes in priorities and methodology. A Reference Group was formed after fieldwork had begun and met thrice with the consultants.

After the production of Schedule B it was decided that the management recommendations that were specified in the brief were of limited use and were modified to allow for detailed assessment of more places and revision of some existing HO citations, as well as complete overhaul of HO1 – Sorrento Historic Precinct.

2.2 Fieldwork

Fieldwork was undertaken by heritage ALLIANCE and Built Heritage separately. Each place was photographed from whatever public space was available, including public walkways and views from public beaches. In some cases, the property was revisited, aerials were used or Council GIS images, if more detail was required on the fabric of the place.

Physical survey of the post-war places and pre-war places was undertaken with different criteria in mind. In both cases, an assessment of intactness and integrity was important to how the place was assessed as high, medium or low priority or noted as warranting an individual HO, contributory to a precinct or non-contributory. The degree of alteration of the fabric was noted and its contribution to the streetscape. However, in many cases for the pre-war places, these considerations might be secondary to a consideration of the historical or associative importance of a place, and in particular, local family associations, or any special qualities the place may have.

For post-war places, physical intactness could be considered with reference to contemporary documentation (where available) such as architect's drawings, vintage newspaper and magazine articles, or archival photographs. By their very nature as one-off commissions, post-war places were considered in isolation as individual specimens, so streetscape contribution was not necessarily a major factor in the assessment.

2.3 Limestone Buildings

One of these special qualities was the material of construction, in particular the local dune limestone. Ninety buildings made of limestone were identified in Blairgowrie, Sorrento and Portsea. This does not include outbuildings made of limestone, of which there are probably a large number, and it does not include kilns, walls or roads.

These buildings are considered to have special qualities, because they are made of locally sourced material and were made by builders who had to develop special skills to use the unique stone. Limestone buildings on the Nepean Peninsula have formed a unique vernacular tradition. By definition, vernacular building is the traditional and natural way by which communities house themselves. It is a continuing process including necessary changes and continuous adaptation as a response to social and environmental constraints. [ICOMOS Charter on the Built Vernacular Heritage (1999)]

Limestone was evidently sought after by local families who had access to limestone quarries or disused lime kilns or found the material attractive or cheap to source locally, rather than importing brick and timber from elsewhere. Others commissioned limestone buildings for public uses, such as lodging houses, shops, hotels and grand mansions to convey both a sense of the local and the grand. The limestone on the peninsula has two different forms, all-limestone and limestone and brick. These two forms of building co-existed and gave rise to two different styles with the addition of brick allowing greater flexibility in the form and style of the building and were probably quicker to construct with less labour required.

Reflecting its local significance, every limestone building identified during this review is either within an existing HO or has been recommended for a HO. Further research into the limestone tradition on the Peninsula is warranted.

2.4 Schedule A

In order to confirm Schedule A, heritage ALLIANCE and Built Heritage did a number of visits to the Peninsula to photograph and inspect properties from the street. Data was then entered onto an excel spreadsheet with an accompanying photo. A number of fields were created to record fabric details and description, probable dates and notes on the context. In the office, details such as any known history or previous research from Flinders Heritage Study or the Thematic History was added.

Fieldwork identified that 50 places, identified in the GIS or the Flinders Heritage Study, had been demolished or radically altered.

Schedule A identified 222 places:

- Two potential precincts, one in East Sorrento and one along Back Beach Road, Portsea (38 Places).
- Contributory properties in HO1 (75 places) and non-contributory (10 places).
- Thirty-eight places were identified as having the potential to be listed on the Heritage Overlay Schedule.
- Seventy Post-War places identified from fieldwork and a database, were graded as high, medium or low priority for assessment.

Schedule A was then further refined by Council staff and the reference group who checked addresses and added places identified by community members and staff. Places already listed in the Heritage Overlay Schedule were deemed a low priority for review, unless the mapping or information contained in the Schedule was incorrect.

2.5 Schedule B

Schedule B consisted of places to be further researched and assessed. Schedule B was then presented to the reference group on 21 May 2018.

Further refining of Schedule B occurred as fieldwork and historical research identified important associations between places, owners and local historical events. Extra research was done on the limestone building tradition on the Peninsula.

Schedule B went through four revisions before the final list of 125 places to be investigated was finalised. Schedule B identified:

- 97 places to be assessed for individual citations, including Post-War places.
- 38 places proposed to be included in two precincts.
- 46 places identified as contributory to HO1.
- 26 places were listed as maybes, pending further information or assessment.

2.6 Research

Prior to the fieldwork survey, consultants prepared contextual histories of the three localities based on research gleaned from secondary sources and the Thematic History of the Area 1 Heritage Review, undertaken by Graeme Butler & Associates and Context in 2012. This covered the main historical themes, important dates in regard to settlement patterns and any distinctive themes to each locality.

Each place citation includes an abbreviated locality history, and longer versions have been included here as Appendix E for future reference.

The Thematic History was used extensively for the history of community facilities, churches, schools, guesthouses and tourist developments. The history of each place was researched using Council planning and building files, rates records, land title certificates, family history files provided by the Nepean Historical Society, Hollinshed's "Pioneers" index, and information from the Flinders Heritage Study.

At the beginning of the research process the Nepean Historical Society was asked if they had files on a large number of properties, that were expected to be included on schedule B. The society has been very generous with sharing its information and members have been prompt in their response to queries about local history and the mysterious inter-connectedness of local families.

In order to better understand and trace the development of the vernacular limestone tradition of building on the Peninsula, a table was compiled which attempts to date each building and the name of the builder where known. This has assisted in looking at the limestone buildings comparatively and determining the better examples of the tradition. Many buildings have dates which cannot be confirmed and as further information comes to light, this table should be updated and edited to maintain its accuracy. This is included as Appendix F.

2.7 Sources

A wide variety of sources were consulted and if no history of a place could be located this reduced its chances of meeting the threshold for listing on Schedule C unless it was of architectural, scientific or social significance.

Sources included:

- Flinders Heritage Study, 1992 & 1997 and the Thematic History, 2012
- Hollinshed, 1982, Lime Land and Leisure
- Municipal Rate Books in the PROV

- Public Building files in the PROV
- Parish plans at the SLV
- Trove newspaper searches
- Certificates of Title for individual properties
- Births Deaths and Marriages online
- Other historic photos, aerials, plans and images from the SLV
- Nepean Historical Society files, photos, maps and images.

For post-war places, a number of more specific sources were consulted:

- Database of Post-War Australian Architecture, held by Built Heritage Pty Ltd
- Property files, held by Shire of Mornington Peninsula
- Architectural drawings, held by Picture Collection, State Library of Victoria
- Research files on individual architects, held by Built Heritage Pty Ltd

2.8 Citation preparation

Citations were prepared for most places listed on Schedule B. In some cases, once a citation was started it became clear that the place did not meet the threshold for inclusion on the Heritage Overlay. This could be due to a lack of history of the place or once it was compared to other examples it was considered to not be representative or not of a quality to justify listing on the HO.

In all cases, if a date for a place could not be gleaned from the records it was given an approximate date range, based on stylistic features; ie Late Victorian 1870-1900, Federation 1900-1920, Interwar 1920-1940, Post-War 1940-1960, and Late Twentieth Century 1960-1990.

For each of the places nominated in Schedule C a citation was prepared, which contained:

- A description that summarised what could be seen from a public place, nature of walls, roof, windows, doors, chimneys and any distinctive features.
- A short history that outlined any pertinent themes, its ownership history, subdivision and settlement patterns, and a brief history of the associated landowners or families.
- Comparative places with thematic or historical links, stylistic similarities or the same builder/designer.
- A statement of significance was prepared which complied with the PPN1 format.

The PPN1 outlines how to write a statement of significance:

What is significant? - This section should be brief, usually no more than one paragraph or a series of dot points. There should be no doubt about the elements of the place that are under discussion. The paragraph should identify features or elements that are significant about the place, for example, house, outbuildings, garden plantings ruins, archaeological sites, interiors as a guide to future decision makers. Clarification could also be made of elements that are not significant. This may guide or provide the basis for an incorporated plan which identifies works that may be exempt from the need for a planning permit.

How is it significant? - Using the heritage criteria above, a sentence should be included to the effect that a place is important. This could be because of its historical significance, its rarity, its research potential, its representativeness, its aesthetic significance, its technical significance and /or its associative significance. The sentence should indicate the threshold for which the place is considered important.

Why is it significant? - The importance of the place needs to be justified against the heritage criteria listed above. A separate point or paragraph should be used for each criterion satisfied. The relevant criterion reference should be inserted in brackets after each point or paragraph, for example (Criterion G).

2.9 Precincts

Schedule B and C recommended two precincts be created, one along Back Beach Road, Portsea and another in the East Sorrento area, centred around Newton Avenue and Hiskens Street. HO1, Sorrento Historic Precinct was re-examined and it was decided to split the HO into four separate areas; Foreshore, Commercial, Residential and Cliff-top. It is proposed that these become stand-alone precinct overlays and citations have been prepared for them. This is a greater refinement of the areas identified in Clause 22.17 Sorrento Historic Precinct Policy. The review of HO1 draws on work in the Flinders Heritage Study and the design assessment work of HLCD Pty Ltd work on the Sorrento Historic Precinct Commercial Area.

East Sorrento precinct contains a large percentage of intact residential properties of interesting or representative character, from the 1880s to 1980s. There is a mix of housing styles, building materials and an intact streetscape character. The setback of the houses, the remnant vegetation and the subdivision pattern are all significant.

Back Beach Road precinct contains the oldest housing subdivision in Portsea, retains the alignment of the original track from the Ford farm on Farnsworth Avenue to the pier and contains interesting and representative examples of intact housing in a mix of styles, materials and character from the 1880s to the 1960s.

Places within precincts are identified as Individual HO, contributory and non-contributory. Precincts are mapped to restrict the number of non-contributory properties.

2.10 Mapping

Mapping of individual places and places within precincts was undertaken in accordance with the PPN1. The PPN1 states under the heading Curtilages and Heritage Overlay Polygons, that;

The Heritage Overlay applies to both the listed heritage item and its associated land. It is usually important to include land surrounding a building, structure, tree or feature of importance to ensure that any development, including subdivision, does not adversely affect the setting, context or significance of the heritage item. The land surrounding the heritage item is known as a 'curtilage' and will be shown as a polygon on the Heritage Overlay map. In many cases, particularly in urban areas and townships, the extent of the curtilage will be the whole of the property (for example, a suburban dwelling and its allotment).

PPN1 goes on to state under Mapping heritage places, that;

In each case, care should be taken to ensure that there is an accurate correlation between the Heritage Overlay schedule and the Heritage Overlay map.

The need for care is exemplified by the fact that the Heritage Overlay map will be the determining factor in any dispute as to whether a control applies (for example, in cases where there is conflict between the Heritage Overlay map and the property description or address in the Heritage Overlay schedule).

Councils are encouraged to review their planning schemes to ensure that all heritage places are correctly mapped and that there are no discrepancies between how places are identified in the Heritage Overlay schedule and Heritage Overlay maps.

This report has recommended that both individual places and precincts be included on the Heritage Overlay schedule. Most individual places will be mapped to the extent of the property boundary. Council's GIS team will map these on the basis of street address which has been previously verified by council staff.

A number of places have been recommended with a reduced overlay and this is outlined in the statement of significance and recommendation. This is due to the properties being on double blocks or large land parcels or being within an area that includes non-contributory or individually significant properties. Council's GIS team will map these and the maps might then be verified with aerial photos. The following places have reduced overlays; 1-17 Constitution Hill Road, Sorrento, 115 Hemston Avenue, Sorrento, 178 Ocean Beach Road, Sorrento, 849 Melbourne Road, Sorrento, 1 Esplanade, Sorrento, 32 Kerferd Avenue, Sorrento, 3073 Point Nepean Road, Sorrento.

Six precincts have been recommended and these cover a large number of properties that are defined as contributory, individually significant or non-contributory. The Statement of Significance for each precinct contains a table which lists those that are contributory and individually significant. Mapping of the precincts was carried out by Council staff. Individually significant buildings have an existing or proposed HO number and a full citation. Contributory buildings have information gathered as part of the List B spreadsheet, which provides basic data on fabric, history and streetscape contribution.

Individually significant buildings make a contribution to the significance of the precinct and have heritage significance independent of its context.

2.11 HERMES

Once the citations have been adopted by Council, the citations will be entered into the HERMES database, administered by Heritage Victoria. The PPN1 states that all statements of significance should be securely stored in the HERMES heritage database.

3.0 KEY FINDINGS

The key findings of the Heritage Review, Area 3 are:

- Schedule A (List A) found 222 places to be assessed, including 70 Post-war places.
- Schedule B (List B) found 125 places to be assessed, including two precincts.
- There are no new places of State significance.
- There are 66 new individual places assessed as having local significance and recommended for the Heritage Overlay schedule.
- There are two new precincts assessed to be of local significance and recommended for the Heritage Overlay schedule.
- HO1 is proposed to be split into four separate precincts, with individual citations and with amended mapping.
- There is one existing HO schedule place, HO43, which requires amendment of the mapping and schedule.
- There is one place, HO47 which has a new statement of significance which will require amendment of the HO schedule.
- There is one place, HO203, which requires amendment of the HO schedule
- Amend HO schedule HO255(VHR H1050) to include a new HO within the existing VHR extent, at 3098 Point Nepean Road.
- 50 places, previously identified in a heritage study or by Council as having heritage significance, had been demolished or significantly altered.

Schedule A (List A) and Schedule B (List B) are included in Appendices B and C.

3.1 Threshold of Significance

A total of 66 individual places were found to meet the threshold for local significance when assessed against the HERCON criteria as required by PPN1 and are recommended for inclusion on the schedule to the Heritage Overlay.

These places are listed in Appendix A.

A total of 6 precincts were found to meet the threshold for local significance when assessed against the HERCON criteria, and are recommended for inclusion on the schedule to the Heritage Overlay.

These precincts are listed in Appendix A.

A total of 59 places from List B were found to fall below the threshold for local significance when assessed against the HERCON criteria. This was due to a number of factors including:

- Alterations which reduce the building's architectural values or where the original fabric cannot be recognised.
- Places where the historic values cannot be demonstrated to a level which would warrant a heritage overlay.
- Places which may be representative of a type but where other better examples exist.

3.2 Policy and Planning Scheme

The brief for this Review did not include a review of Council's Local Planning Policies in regard to heritage. The Mornington Peninsula Planning Scheme did have two local policies at Clause 22.04 and 22.17 which apply to the area under Review.

These two policies were deleted in the Planning Policy Framework review which was approved in July 2021 under Amendment C279morn to the Mornington Peninsula Planning Scheme.

This study steps away from the previous study by finding that the Sorrento Historic Precinct Heritage Overlay 1, should be reduced in overall size by removing the recreation reserve area and some areas of vacant land and non-contributory properties, creating four separate precincts which reflect the same broad themes of the Flinders Heritage Study and the previously existing policy at 22.17.

The four proposed precincts are:

- Sorrento Historic Precinct, Commercial Area
- Sorrento Historic Precinct, Foreshore Area
- Sorrento Historic Precinct, Cliff-top Area
- Sorrento Historic Precinct, Residential Area

Each precinct has a citation which contains a table indicating contributory or individually significant properties. The mapping of each precinct reflects the statement of significance for each precinct. It is recommended that a new policy applies to all six proposed precincts, and to support existing objectives and policies with more specific recommendations and requirements for each of the six precincts recommended in this Review.

Council also has a Design and Development Overlay DDO28, Ocean Beach Road Commercial Precinct. This overlay ensures new development respects the values and character of the Sorrento historic area and is currently being reviewed. It is recommended that the findings of this Review are considered in the development of the design objectives for the historic area.

This review and its recommendations should be reflected in the development of new overlays and local policy and Volume 1 of this Review be included in the planning scheme as a background document (previously called reference documents). Volume 3 of this Review is a compilation of all Statements of Significance at the date of adoption. The individual Statement of Significance documents will become incorporated documents in line with PPN1.

4.0 RECOMMENDATIONS

4.1 Adoption

It is recommended that the Mornington Peninsula Shire Council formally adopt the Mornington Peninsula Heritage Review Area 3 (2019), which comprises:

- Volume 1 - Key Findings and Recommendations
- Volume 2 - Citations
- Volume 3 - Compilation of all Statements of Significance at the date of adoption

Volumes 1 and 2 should be included as Background Documents in the Mornington Peninsula Shire Planning Scheme and be referred to in any local planning policy dealing with the heritage of Sorrento, Blairgowrie and Portsea.

4.2 Implementation

It is recommended that the Mornington Peninsula Shire Council implement the recommendations of this Heritage Review by preparing an amendment to the planning scheme:

- Introduce 66 individual places listed in Appendix A, to the Schedule of the Heritage Overlay.
- Introduce 6 precincts listed in Appendix A, to the Schedule of the Heritage Overlay
- Amend mapping of HO43
- Amend schedule of HO43, HO203 and HO255.
- Introduce a new incorporated plan- Statement of Significance for HO47
- Amend the Schedule to Clause 72.04 to include all new Statement of Significance documents.
- Make Volume 1 and 2 Background Documents in the Planning Scheme.

4.3 Further work

- Regular review of places on Schedule B, which should replace Council's GIS Watchlist.
- Further research into the limestone buildings on the Nepean Peninsula.
- Future review of places listed on the Heritage Overlay Schedule that have citations that are non-compliant with PPN1.

5.0 PLANNING SCHEME AMENDMENT C262MORN

The Mornington Peninsula Shire Council adopted Volumes 1 and 2 of the Mornington Peninsula Heritage Review Area 3 on 19 August 2019.

The findings of the report were implemented in Amendment C262morn to the Mornington Peninsula Planning Scheme. The amendment was exhibited in June-July 2020 and Council considered submissions at its meeting on 14 December 2020.

Council resolved that Amendment C262morn be split into three parts, namely:

- Part 1: Adopt places where no objecting submissions were received or where submissions have been resolved.
- Part 2: Refer unresolved submissions to an independent Planning Panel.
- Part 3: Abandon the proposed heritage overlay to these places that have been assessed as no longer meeting the threshold for heritage significance.
 - 2-4 Elizabeth Road Portsea

- 10 Esplanade Sorrento
- 6 King Street Sorrento
- 42-46 Ozone Avenue Sorrento

The Planning Panel for Amendment C262morn Part 2 was convened in February 2021. The Planning Panel's report recommended changes to some citations and did not recommended a Heritage Overlay for:

- 10 MacGregor Avenue, Portsea
- 3039 Point Nepean Road Sorrento

Amendment C262morn Part 2 was adopted by Council on 15 June 2021. In addition to the two places recommended to be removed by the Planning Panel, Council resolved to remove the following places from the heritage overlay:

- 3720 Point Nepean Road, Portsea
- 15 Newton Avenue, Sorrento – from the East Sorrento Precinct
- Units 1 and 2, 3482 Point Nepean Road, Sorrento
- Several non-contributory places in the Sorrento Commercial Precinct:
 - 53 to 163 Ocean Beach Road, Sorrento
- Several non-contributory places in the Sorrento Cliff Top Precinct:
 - 1, 2, 7, 9, 11 and 13 Cooper Grove
 - 2 and 4 Ruth Avenue
 - 3378 Point Nepean Road
- Several non-contributory places in the East Sorrento Precinct:
 - 9, 13 and 17 Newton Avenue, Sorrento

On 1 May 2022, the Minister for Planning approved Amendment C262morn Part 2 with changes to include the following properties within the Heritage Overlay contrary to the Council's decision above:

- 3720 Point Nepean Road, Portsea
- 9 and 13 Newton Avenue, Sorrento – non-contributory places from the East Sorrento Precinct
- 15 Newton Avenue, Sorrento – contributory place from the East Sorrento Precinct
- Units 1 and 2, 3482 Point Nepean Road, Sorrento

Locality Histories

Sorrento

The land of which Sorrento is a part is Boon wurrung/Bunurong country. The Boon wurrung/Bunurong are a predominantly coastal people whose traditional lands encompass some 7,800 square kilometres of territory around Western Port Bay and the Mornington Peninsula. The Boon wurrung/Bunurong are members of the Kulin nation who have lived in and managed their country for thousands of years. The Boon wurrung/Bunurong traditional way of life was interrupted at the turn of the nineteenth century when they made contact with sealers from Van Diemens Land and then in 1802, British sailors on board the Lady Nelson who were exploring Port Phillip Bay. [Butler & Context, 2012:14-19]

In September 1836, under pressure from the number of illegal occupations and squatting which had occurred, the Port Phillip land district was proclaimed open for settlement, allowing for the sale of Boon wurrung/Bunurong lands, claimed by the Crown, to be sold at auction to Europeans. Sorrento was occupied by European settlers quarrying and burning lime, fishing and practising limited agriculture. The lime burning industry of the Nepean Peninsula was vital to the development of the Peninsula and Melbourne. In 1803 the settlers of Sullivan Bay used local lime to construct chimneys and were the first to recognise its potential. In June 1839, John Fawkner who had been at Sullivan Bay, was advertising Nepean lime for sale in Melbourne. [Port Phillip Patriot and Advertiser 22 July 1839.] Lime was transported on small lighters to boats moored out in the channel between Sorrento Pier and the Baths. Later it became common to build kilns on the foreshore where bagged processed lime could be run out on small jetties to lime craft. [Hollinshed, 1982:51]

Limestone was not only an important industry on the Nepean Peninsula it has also had a lasting impact on the heritage of the area with small cottages, large public buildings, schools, hotels and mansions built from local limestone. Nepean limestone is a vernacular tradition on the Nepean Peninsula with two distinct styles of limestone construction; all-limestone and limestone with red brick quoining. Local builders developed great skills and techniques in designing and building with the local limestone.

By the 1860s the Nepean Peninsula was recognised as not only a sublimely beautiful landscape with easy access to the Bay and the Ocean, but as a place for holidaying and respite from Melbourne. As early as 1868 George Selth Coppin (1819-1906) was planning to develop Sorrento township, foreshore and back beach as a place for tourists. He purchased 225 acres and subdivided it into small allotments for shops and houses. By 1874 he had established his own steamship company and later a steam tramway to transport visitors from Melbourne to his Ocean Amphitheatre at the back beach. Another influential developer of Sorrento was Charles Gavan Duffy (1816-1903), who developed 600 acres with his neighbour W.Cockburn, for gentleman's cliff-top villas, of which many still line the edge of the Bay. The Bella Vista Estate created the unusual alignment of Point Nepean Road and reserved Sorrento Park. [Butler & Context 2012:29-30]

By the 1890s Sorrento township and Ocean Beach Road had begun to develop with new facilities such as a Mechanics Institute and shops. On the west side of Ocean Beach Road, opposite the Continental Hotel was Stringers Stores, the Athenaeum Theatre, and the Oriental Coffee Palace. Between 1900 and 1910 a number of buildings were constructed on both sides of Ocean Beach Road, to provide accommodation and retail services. Along Melbourne Road, Hotham Road and in East Sorrento, a large number of permanent and holiday homes were constructed in this period, as were schools and businesses. [Lardner, 2015:21]

In the early 20th century, development of Sorrento was impacted by the closure of the steam tramway and steamer services and the rise of the motor car tourist. Construction of holiday homes and weekenders steadily increased in the Inter-war period and then again in the Post-World War Two years. A major building wave began in the Inter-War period, with the replication of suburban styles in the streets of Sorrento and Portsea. The later part of this period, after World War Two, saw some modernist designs for holiday homes resulting in a new trend of modernist beach houses by innovative designers for a wealthy clientele. [Butler & Context, 2012:109-110]

The influence of modernist architecture in the Post-War period was felt not only among architects but influenced the local tradition of beach shacks through the 1960s, 70s and 80s. Even small fibro beach shacks borrowed design elements from architectural Modernism, to achieve a simplicity of living and relaxed form. They allowed their owners to live in 'place'; they generally sat on large blocks creating little disturbances to the surrounding topography or vegetation. [Butler & Context, 2012:111] By the 1980s and 1990s that had all changed and one of the marked elements of housing in the Peninsula since then is the development of very large suburban houses and apartments and battleaxe subdivisions which fit the entirety of the block and require the removal of most vegetation.

Portsea

The land of which Portsea is a part is Boon wurrung/Bunurong country. The Boon wurrung/Bunurong are a predominantly coastal people whose traditional lands encompass some 7,800 square kilometres of territory around Western Port Bay and the Mornington Peninsula. The Boon wurrung/Bunurong are members of the Kulin nation who have lived in and managed their country for thousands of years. The Boon wurrung/Bunurong traditional way of life was interrupted at the turn of the nineteenth century when they made contact with sealers from Van Diemens Land and then in 1802, British sailors on board the Lady Nelson who were exploring Port Phillip Bay. [Butler & Context, 2012:14-19]

In September 1836, under pressure from the number of illegal occupations and squatting which had occurred, the Port Phillip land district was proclaimed open for settlement, allowing for the sale of Boon wurrung/Bunurong lands, claimed by the Crown, to be sold at auction to Europeans. Portsea was occupied by European settlers quarrying and burning lime, fishing and practising limited agriculture. Settlers in this part of the Peninsula were practising a diverse primary industry, due mainly to their isolation from supplies and markets. The earliest European settlers were Daniel Sullivan 1840, James Sandle Ford 1846, John Devine 1844, Bunting Johnstone 1843 and Edward Skelton 1842. The isolation of the Nepean Peninsula between 1830 and 1870 and the porous, calcareous soils, reduced the economic viability of agriculture, but by combining small scale farming, fishing and lime burning, early settlers like James Sandle Ford, could make a good living. [Butler & Context, 2012:53-56]

Limestone was not only an important industry on the Nepean Peninsula it has also had a lasting impact on the heritage of the area with small cottages, large public buildings, schools, hotels and mansions built from local limestone. Nepean limestone is a vernacular tradition on the Nepean Peninsula with two distinct styles of limestone construction; all-limestone and limestone with red brick quoining. Local builders developed great skills and techniques in designing and building with the local limestone. The earliest limestone building on the Peninsula is known as the Shepherds Hut built by Dennis Sullivan who operated a lime kiln nearby.

In 1852 the northern shore of Point Nepean, which had been selected by the Sullivans, was resumed for a Quarantine Station. Jetties, a cemetery, a hospital, accommodation huts and fencing were constructed between 1852 and 1978. In the 1880s, fortifications and gun emplacements were built on the tip of Point Nepean to defend the heads. In the 1940s much of the Quarantine Station was taken over by an Officer Cadet School and the Army School of Health until they closed in circa 1980. Many Portsea residents worked at the Station and built houses in the surrounding areas. A school was established to educate the children of workers and inmates, and the Station's doctors provided valuable services to the local community. [Butler & Context 2012:120-122]

By the 1860s, Nepean Peninsula was recognized as not only a sublimely beautiful landscape with easy access to the Bay and the Ocean, but as a place for holidaying and respite from Melbourne. The first gentlemen owners on the Peninsula arrived in the 1870s and recognizing its potential began to build villas and hotels, acquire lime kilns and land for subdivision. The most prestigious coastal areas, as sites for gentlemen's villas extended from Sorrento to Portsea along the cliff top with views of the Bay, and many of these large nineteenth century homes still exist. [Butler & Context, 2012:26]

Portsea's origins as a place of limeburners and fishermen and then as a place for holiday makers, occasioned the need for a pier. The pier was crucial for Portsea's development and it is no coincidence that the shops and hotels of Portsea, and the earliest roads such as Back Beach Road lead to the Pier. Many local families had businesses servicing tourists or worked at the Quarantine Station or Fort Franklin. Quamby, 44 Blair Road was built for Edwin Dobie who worked at the Quarantine station, as was Glasneven, 34-36 Back Beach Road, for boatman Patrick Foran. Many residents did and probably still do, provide services to holiday makers. Some of the most prominent non-residential buildings in Portsea are associated with early tourist developments - such as Marlborough House and the Portsea Hotel.

In the 1870s, John Watson had built a six room limestone house on the beach near Point Franklin, as well as fishing huts on the foreshore. The land was compulsorily acquired in 1885. Fort Franklin was constructed between 1885 and 1889 and consisted of a series of gun emplacements, barracks and accommodation buildings. The Fort was operated by the Victorian Colonial Government until Federation when it was taken over by the Commonwealth. It was constructed along with Queenscliff and Point Nepean Forts to defend Port Phillip from Russian invaders, and protect the south channel shipping lanes. [Butler & Context, 2012:126]

The Fort was used during the Second World War as an observation post and then as a migrant camp after World War Two. It was then taken over as the Lord Mayors Camp providing holidays for underprivileged children. It continues to be a children's camp to this day. [Butler & Context, 2012:168]

A number of important individuals and their families have had an impact on the development of Portsea. John Farnsworth was a building contractor and designer from South Australia. He was commissioned to build the Sorrento Hotel and later he built the Nepean Hotel at Portsea for James Ford, whose children subdivided his farmland along Back Beach Road. Farnsworth built a large number of limestone houses along the cliff-top including, Mandalay, The Anchorage, St Aubins, and Seacombe. Farnsworth himself lived in the original small house beside the Nepean Hotel and later at Wannaeue on Point Nepean Road. He managed the Nepean Hotel for a time and later he was the Portsea postmaster. John James Farnsworth his grandson, started the Queenscliff-Sorrento ferry service and lived in Farnsworth Cottage an 1890s cottage built for Mrs McGrath, daughter of early settler, Dennis Sullivan. Local families inter-married and many have stayed on the Peninsula for generations. [Nepean Historical Society family history files - Farnsworth]

In the early 20th century, development of Portsea was impacted by the demise of steamer services, the declining use of the Quarantine Station and the rise of the motor car tourist. Construction of holiday homes and weekenders steadily increased in the Inter-war period and then again in the Post-World War Two years. Delgany Castle was designed by noted architect Harold Desbrowe Annear in 1925 for the Armytage family, and is the most elaborate of these buildings. Its size made it ideal to be used as an Army Camp Hospital in 1946 and then in 1947 was converted by the Dominican Sisters to a school for Deaf Children. It is now an exclusive residential estate and retreat. [Victorian Heritage Database - Delgany, Portsea]

A major building wave began in the Inter-War period, with the replication of suburban styles in the streets of Sorrento and Portsea. The later part of this period, after World War Two, saw some modernist designs for holiday homes resulting in a new trend of modernist beach houses by innovative designers for a wealthy clientele. Some important Victorian villas and homes were replaced in this era by new modernist houses. [Butler & Context, 2012:109-110]

The influence of modernist architecture in the Post-War period was felt not only among architects but influenced the local tradition of beach shacks through the 1960s, 70s and 80s. Even small fibro beach shacks borrowed design elements from architectural Modernism, to achieve a simplicity of living and relaxed form. They allowed their owners to live in 'place'; they generally sat on large blocks creating little disturbances to the surrounding topography or vegetation. [Butler & Context, 2012:111] By the 1980s and 1990s that had all changed and one of the marked elements of housing in the Peninsula since then is the development of very large suburban houses and apartments and battleaxe subdivisions which fit the entirety of the block and require the removal of most vegetation.

Portsea has a limited population, only 446 residents in the 2011 census declared Portsea was their home. 87.8% of Portsea dwellings were unoccupied on census night. [Australian Bureau of Statistics, 2011 census data] This seasonal population has given rise to limited service provision in the town and a limited number of public or civic buildings. Portsea no longer has a school, St Thomas' church is only used for infrequent weddings and funerals and only one or two shops are permanently in use. With the closure of the Officer Cadet School and the Army School of Health, the absorption of Fort Nepean and the former Quarantine Station into the Point Nepean National Park, there are fewer facilities and services and an even stronger focus on tourism to sustain the town.

Blairgowrie

The land of which Blairgowrie is a part is Boon wurrung/Bunurong country. The Boon wurrung/Bunurong are a predominantly coastal people whose traditional lands encompass some 7,800 square kilometres of territory around Western Port Bay and the Mornington Peninsula. The Boon wurrung/Bunurong are members of the Kulin nation who have lived in and managed their country for thousands of years. [Hollinshed, 1982:51] At Blairgowrie the Hughes family and the Cain family operated kilns around Hughes Road and St Johns Wood Road. Further to the south east were the kilns of Rye. Between Rye and Portsea there was a constant flow of lime burners and drays and many of the early roads developed near to these kilns. Owen Cain in particular, owned over 700 acres of land between Rye and Sorrento. Here he operated kilns and ran livestock and gave rise to a sprawling family who married into other local families. Cain's Blairgowrie kiln remained in operation until 1916 and was well preserved until the late 1930s. [Butler & Context, 2012:54]

By the 1860s the Nepean Peninsula was recognised as not only a sublimely beautiful landscape with easy access to the Bay and the Ocean, but as a place for holidaying and respite from Melbourne. Developments in Sorrento by Coppin and Duffy, brought wealthy gentlemen to the Peninsula and opened up more lands for subdivision. The most prestigious coastal areas, as sites for gentlemen's villas extended from Sorrento to Portsea along the cliff top with views of the Bay with one notable exception on a hill in what is now Blairgowrie. [Butler & Context, 2012:29]

The name Blairgowrie came from Dr John Blair (1834-1887) who purchased the house and property Villa Maria in 1876. It had been built for Parliamentarian and founder of the catholic weekly, the Advocate, Michael O'Grady in 1872. [Butler & Context, 2012:31] Dr Blair was a well-known Melbourne doctor who had been seminal in the establishment of the Alfred Hospital. A description of his property was included in the Argus, in 1887. "A stone house, with wide verandah all round, erected by the late Hon M. O'Grady, containing in all eight rooms five thereof being large sized ones, well furnished, and ready for immediate occupation, with cellar, outhouses, stable, &c., also large underground tank...There are also valuable limestone deposits on estate which can be worked to great advantage." [The Argus, 5 November 1887, p.16.] Blairgowrie House continued to be owned by the Blair family until 1961 when it was sold to the National Trust, who then sold it circa 1991.

Dr John Blair was joined at Blairgowrie by two other doctors from Melbourne, Dr George Graham and Dr J.W Gunst. Graham and Gunst, both built wattle and daub and stone houses on their blocks between Melbourne Road and the Back Beach. Graham's house, known as Roseville and Gunst's known as Longford Cottage are still extant. [Hollinshed, 1982:44] Blairgowrie's development as a beachside suburb only occurred once the extensive lands of Blairgowrie House were subdivided and lime burning had moved to Rye. Some of the lands belonging to the Hughes and Cain families created other subdivisions.

The first major subdivision of 214 lots around Blairgowrie House was undertaken in the Inter-War period. [Blairgowrie Estate, Sorrento, subdivision plan, circa 1910-1930, State Library of Victoria] Between 1949 and 1954 Cain's Estate was being advertised between Canterbury Jetty and Macs Corner. In 1954 it was re-advertised as land for only a 5-pound deposit [The Argus 18 April 1949, 19 February 1954] In 1955, Wilsons Estate on the corner of Nepean Highway and St Johns Wood Road was advertised which included 18 shop sites and 39 home sites. [The Argus 28 Jan 1955] The lack of a commercial area and retail strip was rectified by this subdivision with the development of the Blairgowrie shopping strip along Point Nepean Road. Prior to this, a single shop and post office at Macs Corner had been the only business between Sorrento and Rye.

A major building wave began in the 1960s and 1970s in Blairgowrie. The earlier part of this period, after World War Two, saw some ground breaking modernist designs for holiday homes in other parts of the Peninsula, which resulted in a new trend of small, modernist, spare beach houses along the lines of the Small Homes Service, offered by The Royal Victorian Institute of Architects and The Age newspaper. [Butler & Context, 2012:109-110] Even small fibro beach shacks borrowed design elements from architectural Modernism, to achieve a simplicity of living and relaxed form. They allowed their owners to live in 'place'; they generally sat on large blocks creating little disturbances to the surrounding topography or vegetation. [Butler & Context, 2012:111] Blairgowrie's streets are well known for the remnant vegetation, dune topography and well treed blocks. By the 1980s and 1990s that had begun to change and one of the marked elements of housing in the Peninsula since then is the development of large suburban houses and subdivisions which fit the entirety of the block.
